“But when he comes, the Spirit of truth, he will guide you to all truth.”

(from the Holy Gospel according to John 16:12-15)

We continue with select quotes from Pope Francis' letter on family and marriage, Amoris Laetitia, focusing this week on those statements which pertain specifically to the role of women in marriage and family and society.

Mothers

Pope Francis says there is a special unique role for women in both the family and society. "The woman stands before the man as a mother, the subject of the new human life that is conceived and develops in her, and from her is born into the world. Any weakening of this maternal presence with its feminine qualities poses a grave risk to our world. A mother who watches over her child with tenderness and compassion helps him or her to grow in confidence and to experience that the world is a good and welcoming place. This helps the child to grow in self-esteem and, in turn, to develop a capacity for intimacy and empathy."

Feminism

"The equal dignity of men and women makes us rejoice to see old forms of discrimination disappear, and within families there is a growing reciprocity. I certainly value feminism, but one that does not demand uniformity or negate motherhood. If certain forms of feminism have arisen which we must consider inadequate, we must nonetheless see in the women's movement the working of the Spirit for a clearer recognition of the dignity and rights of women."

Women's Rights

"I certainly value feminism, but one that does not demand uniformity or negate motherhood. Despite the legitimate and indeed desirable wish of women to study, work, develop their skills, and have personal goals, we cannot ignore the need that children have for a mother's presence, especially in the first months of life."

"For the grandeur of women includes all the rights derived from their inalienable human dignity but also from their feminine genius, which is essential to society. Their specifically feminine abilities – motherhood in particular – also grant duties, because womanhood also entails a specific mission in this world, a mission that society needs to protect and preserve for the good of all. Even though significant advances have been made in the recognition of women's rights and their participation in public life, in some countries much remains to be done to promote these rights.

"Every form of sexual submission must be rejected. This includes all improper interpretations of the Letter to the Ephesians where Paul tells women to 'be subject to your husbands.' (Eph 5:22). This passage mirrors the cultural of the time, but our concern is with the revealed message that it conveys. Love excludes every kind of subjection whereby the wife might become a slave of the husband. The community and unity which they should establish through marriage is constituted by a reciprocal donation of self, which is a mutual subjection. The biblical text is actually concerned with encouraging everyone to overcome a complacent individualism and to be constantly mindful of others. 'Husbands should love their wives as their own bodies. He who loves his wife loves himself.' (Eph 5:28) In marriage, this reciprocal submission takes on a special meaning, and is seen as a freely chosen mutual belonging marked by fidelity, respect, and care."
