PLENARY INDULGENCE—The faithful may obtain a plenary indulgence—a remission before God of the temporal punishment for a previously forgiven sin—by visiting a minor basilica. To obtain a plenary indulgence during a pilgrimage to a basilica, one must participate in any sacred rite or recite the Lord’s Prayer or the profession of faith while there, then go to Confession and Communion, and pray for the intention of the pope. ~ taken from The Register, Salina Diocese newspaper

FRIARS' MIND

Fr. Curtis Carlson, OFM Cap. & Fr. Vince Mary, OFM Cap.

On May 8, 1996, Archbishop John Quinn gave a lecture at Oxford University in England: "The Relation of Moral Life and Moral Laws." Archbishop Quinn reflects that, some years ago, morality was formulated primarily as "do's" and "don'ts." Practical moral questions were given philosophical answers. Quinn suggests that "beyond moral precepts and philosophical argument we must come to moral life." He is not saying to do away with moral laws, but to fill out the letter of the law with the fullness of the spirit of the law.

According to Quinn, "it is the experience of a person, Jesus Christ, not just the knowledge of a precept that is transforming mercy and grace." There are, indeed, some behaviors to avoid because they are wrong and other behaviors to encourage because they are right. And, further, it is better to avoid the bad and do the good because of ones deeply-felt relationship with Christ. The archbishop explains, "If gears lack oil, they make a jarring noise. With oil, they work smoothly, even silently. Moral precepts, like gears, need oil. That oil is the full-blooded life of discipleship, a life of prayer and union with Christ Jesus the person." He continues, "we can know moral precepts by reason, deduction, observation, study and experience. But we cannot know or value the moral life of the Christian unless we know and have through the Spirit a living relationship with Christ Jesus."

Quinn quotes theologian Karl Rahner as saying "that if a person has not experienced the transforming mercy and grace of Jesus Christ, then the attempt to propose moral precepts will not be good news, but only a piling up of burdens." What is recommended here is not to set aside the precepts if and when they are experienced as burdens, but to allow Christ to change them from burdens to good news. Moral precepts provide us with boundaries to guide our daily living and a pattern around which to form our lives. If we disregard these boundaries and patterns, we will only end up unhappy ourselves and cause unhappiness for those others in our lives.

Thus is evangelization tied to morality. As Christians, we cannot say we believe in Christ and then simply do entirely as we please. Yet, if we do genuinely know the presence of Christ in our lives, then our behavior will follow a certain pattern and stay within proper boundaries.

Archbishop Quinn's "point, then, is that if all we do is stress moral precepts and moral laws and justify them more or less exclusively on the basis of philosophical reasons, we are in reality shortchanging the Gospel and diminishing our Christian identity. Moral laws: yes. But moral life also. This is perhaps what St. Bernard had in mind when he said, "When we have traveled all paths, we come to him who said, "I am the way.""

Holy Hour in Honor of the Sacred Heart of Jesus

November 15th following the 10:00a.m. Mass
Basilica of St. Fidelis

An icon of the Sacred Heart of Jesus will be the centerpiece of a Holy Hour following the 10:00a.m. Mass on Sunday, November 15th, at the Basilica of St. Fidelis.

The holy hour, flowing from the jubilee for the 350th anniversary of the apparitions of the Sacred Heart of Jesus to St. Margaret May Alacoque and inspired by Pope Francis' encyclical letter Dilexit Nos (He Loved Us), is sponsored by the St. Fidelis Council of the Knights of Columbus.

The Sacred Heart Holy Hour will include readings and reflections, prayers to the Sacred Heart, and time for silent adoration of the Blessed Sacrament. Let us grow in our devotion to the Most Sacred Heart of Jesus.

The icon will be on display in the basilica beginning Saturday, November 14th.
