PLENARY INDULGENCE—The faithful may obtain a plenary indulgence—a remission before God of the temporal punishment for a previously forgiven sin—by visiting a minor basilica. To obtain a plenary indulgence during a pilgrimage to a basilica, one must participate in any sacred rite or recite the Lord’s Prayer or the profession of faith while there, then go to Confession and Communion, and pray for the intention of the pope. ~ taken from The Register, Salina Diocese newspaper

Labor of Love

Monday is Labor Day. On Labor Day, paradoxically, we do not labor. But we engage in the most difficult aspect of labor, we search for its meaning. Our modern culture concentrates on the financial and social dimensions of work, but people of faith need to reflect on the spiritual meaning of our labors.

Christians work not only for financial security and personal fulfillment, but also as an expression of our faith. Work was integral to the life and the message of Christ. Jesus is the Good Shepherd, a laborer. He was known as "the carpenter's son." For his apostles he chose not churchmen but fishermen. And most of his parables are about daily work: farming and fishing, housekeeping and homemaking.

Scripture reminds us that God does not work in the world apart from us. We are his stewards. He raises children through mothers and fathers. He heals through doctors and nurses. He imparts knowledge through teachers and tutors. He builds through carpenters and craftsmen. St. Theresa told their convent cook, "Christ moves among the pots and the pans." St. James wrote, "Faith without works is dead." (Jas 2:26) Whatever your profession, you are laboring in the vineyard of the Lord.

Christ also taught that work is not the be-all and end-all of life. He knew the importance of rest and renewal.

He told his Apostles to come aside to an out of the way place and rest awhile. The drudgery of our labors is often due to failure to stop and reflect on the meaning of our work. Christianity understands the paradox that on Labor Day we do not labor.

Christ taught that prayer was an integral part of the work of his Father. He went faithfully to the synagogue and temple to pray. The word liturgy means the work of the people. Our participation in the prayer of the church, especially the Eucharist, is our most important work. We do not make our living by this work of prayer, but it is the work that gives meaning to our living. Whatever your career, it is only a part time job. Your full-time job is becoming the person that God wants you to be.

If we labor only for material rewards, we miss a deeper dimension of our work. St. Paul wrote, "Whatever you do, work at it with your whole being. Do it for the Lord rather than for men, since you know full well that you will receive an inheritance from him as your reward." (Col 3:23-24) ## and mirth . . . .

Asked how many people work at the Vatican, Pope John XXIII replied, "About half of them."
